

Sinclair
Broadcasting's
decision to force
their stations to
air an anti-Kerry
documentary days
before the election
is a clear example
of the dangers of media consolidation.

While free speech is important to our democracy, it is also important to provide information
that is "fair and balanced". This is especially critical
during an election
cycle.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free
of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. When large companies control
the airwaves, we get more of what's good
for the bottom line
and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something
produced at "News
Central" far away,
it's more important
that we see real people from our own
communities and more
substantive news
about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions
show why we need to strengthen media
ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license
renewal process
needs to involve
more than a returned postcard. Thank you.